harp

« Beauty will redeem the world » From these words by Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Matt Dupont takes his inspiration. Matt is a sensitive and ambitious musician, as dedicated to his solo and orchestral performance career as he is to his teaching.

Full of curiosity and determination, he studied abroad with great masters, including Nicolas Tulliez (Orchestre Philharmonique de Radio France) in Shanghai and Heidi Krutzen (London Philharmonia) in Vancouver, and Caroline Lizotte in Montreal.

Matt's elegant and refined style has earned him a number of invitations to play with some of Quebec's premier orchestras, including the Orchestre Métropolitain and the Québec Symphony Orchestra.

Among the many prizes and scholarships Matt has received, he recently won Second Place at the prestigious Orford Music Award in 2020.

In addition to his performing career, Matt has been teaching harp at the École de Musique Vincent-d'Indy since 2018. He has been recently appointed as harp instructor at the Conservatoire du Québec à Trois-Rivières. The same year, he became a teacher at Educare secondary school (Edu2) to introduce young students to music through learning the harp. He is truly devoted to his students as he believes in the next generation to become aspiring musicians.
